

Vacancy announcement , February 11, 2010

In the framework of a World Bank Research Project run through the Households in Conflict Network, we are looking for a Phd student/recent post-doc in Economics or Demography to work with prof. Philip Verwimp on Gender and Conflict at the Université Libre de Bruxelles, Solvay Brussels School of Economics and Management, Belgium

The contract will be for 6 months full time (preferably) or 12 months part-time, starting March 1. The net-salary will be approximately 1700 euro per month for an advanced PhD student and 2.100 per month for a recent post-doc.

Skills required

- strong background in econometrics
- experience with household data sets
- familiarity with gender and conflict in developing countries
- self-motivated, well organized and team player
- ambition to publish in international peer-reviewed journals

Please send your application (cv + letter of motivation) to Philip Verwimp before February 22, email : philip.verwimp@gmail.com